++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly dry south and east, showers elsewhere.

Today:
Dry with good sunny spells across southern and eastern Scotland, while central and western parts look cloudier with outbreaks of showery rain. Across the far north and northwest a mix of sunny sells and showers. Fresh or strong southwesterly winds.

Tonight:
Showers in northwest merge into a longer spell of occasionally heavy rain and edge southeast into central and eastern parts. The south remains dry with clear spells. Windy in north.

Thursday:
Rather cloudy across central parts with patchy rain, otherwise a bright start with sunny spells, and a few showers in north. Cloud and rain spread northeast in afternoon and evening.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Breezy with outbreaks of rain Friday, occasionally heavy in west around midday. Cloudy with patchy rain and drizzle in east over the weekend but the west looks drier and brighter.
